We are looking forward to your starting work with us in two weeks. In the meantime, I wanted to give you updated information that we have discovered regarding our network.

1. We discovered a memo from the previous IT staff requesting a Cisco “PIX or ASA firewall appliance.” After some digging, we have discovered that this device was purchased and placed in the network before our IT staff left, and the firewall shown in the earlier network diagram that we sent you is no longer available. It is not clear whether our previous IT staff had made any progress in configuring the new firewall, so I hope you'll come to work prepared to set this up!
2. We had a break-in at the company last week, and the vandals took every one of our printers! You should bring a printer with you when you start work, with the appropriate cables necessary to hook it up to our network. We apologize for this inconvenience.
